

Is your anti-virus up-to-date?

I have spoken about rouge antivirus programs in the past and most people just don't understand the where's and why's of it all. As part of my desire to make technology simple, I strive to find blogs, articles, websites, how-to's that will help the average person understand their computer a little bit better.

Today, I found this blog by Robert Siciliano. He gives a plain English explanation on the rouge antivirus programs that pop-up on your computer.

Now we all know that knowledge is power. So now that you understand how you get infected by these programs, you can better understand what not to do.

The only thing that Robert doesn't tell you how to do is to remove them. That my friends is best left up to your trusted IT solution provider.

If you ever have any questions or concerns about your computer, please drop me an email or message me at one of the social networks below. I will do my best to answer your questions.

Remember, Make My Technology Simple is a full service IT solutions provider. We partner with small businesses to give them the IT Power of a larger company. I have over 15 years of IT Management and Hands On experience to help make technology easier for the average person to understand and take full advantage of.
